KAHN WOULD HAVE MEN FROM 18 TO 40 INCLUDED IN DRAFT

An amendment the draft law to make men between the ages of eighteen and forty subject to conscription will be introduced in Congress by Congressman Kahn of California when the short session opens, in December.

Congressman Kahn, who is ranking Republican member of the Military Affairs Committee and was active in guiding the present draft bill through Congress, will consult War Department officials before completing the draft of his amendment.

"What we have done is only a drop in the bucket," Congressman Kahn said in explaining the need for changing the draft ages. "Men, money and food must be furnished by America beyond any realization of this people at present."

The Californian will introduce a bill in the House at the next session to make all men between eighteen and forty liable to conscription.

ARMY PREPARED TO KEEP TAB ON U. S. CASUALTIES

A small army of clerks, operating files covering 40,000 square feet of floor space, soon will be employed by the statistical division of the War Department to keep the individual record of every man wearing Uncle Sam's uniform.

Announcement of the details of this gigantic filing system forcibly brings home the fact that American soldiers will be killed, wounded, and imprisoned in Europe.

The main purpose of the statistics is to provide an accurate means of checking casualty reports. Incidentally, however, the complete army history of the men will be recorded.

Major J. J. Jones has charge of the central office in Washington. Another will be established in Europe. Weekly reports will be made to central office by divisional bureaus, which in turn will receive information from three members of each regiment, specially detailed to the work.

Two filing systems will be maintained. One, containing in alphabetical order the names of every man in the service, will serve as a check on referring to the regimental files.

The record of each man will contain the name and address of his nearest relative, to serve as an aid to prompt transmission of cabled reports of deaths and serious illness. The War Department also will undertake to give relatives reports of military funerals, location of burial places, and information concerning Americans held in enemy prison camps.

Until the Red Cross came to its aid, the British government experienced great difficulty in handling casualty reports; and by the establishment of this system, the War Department intends to avoid similar confusion.

WILL TEACH SOLDIERS AT NIGHT SCHOOLS

Learning to fight by day and to read by night will be the soldier's program for the winter, if plans under consideration by the Board of Education today are carried out.

School officials and the District War Service Committee are co-operating to organize night schools for soldiers. Technical courses may be opened at McKinley Manual Training School and commercial courses at Business High School.

It is believed that teachers will volunteer.

OLD EUROPE DIES WITH AUTOCRACY, SENATOR ASSERTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—"Old Europe is dead," declared Senator Fletcher of Florida, president of the Southern Commercial Congress, at the opening of the ninth annual convention here today. "Democracy has been grossly assaulted, but autocracy has or will be conquered, and out of its ashes will grow a new world order. New industrial relations will be established. The features of interdependence among nations and sections of one country will come to the front.

"Of course, our first task will be to win the war. Soon or late, it will be done."

After addresses of welcome by Mayor Mitchell and Governor Whitman of New York, the meeting was turned over to speakers on the subject of advertising.

"We no longer permit ourselves to be at the mercy of King Cotton," declared St. ElmoMSGore, of Atlanta. "When the farmer of the old days in the Southland raised nothing but cotton, he had to sell it at the buyer's price, for in no other way could he purchase the food products of the West. But the Southern farmer of today raises his food at his home, and can demand a higher price for his cotton."

"The South has awakened to her manufacturing possibilities, but they are by no means exhausted. Our cities are being circled about by factories. We are now harnessing the water. Through the Southwest you will now see great steel towers and high tension electric wires stretching across the country like giant serpents bearing the power of a thousand water falls to the wheels of 100,000 mills."

"Look what I got!"

SAM WILLIAMS has picked up a "full-blooded" dog of about nine different breeds as sure as you live, and he is on his way to Penrod's house to match him against "Duke."

Think of a story with two boys and two dogs in it! Possibilities are unlimited.

Almost any one can think of a good name for a baby or a Pullman car, but it takes a boy to think up an appropriate name for a dog.

Sam wanted to call him "John Carmichael" and Penrod wanted to call him "Walter." Between the two the poor dog doesn't know his own name because boys never compromise.

Booth Tarkington's Penrod Stories in Cosmopolitan are real literature—comparable only to the delightful, never-to-be-forgotten boy stories that gave the world Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn through the beloved genius of Mark Twain.

And remember that Cosmopolitan is not a one-good-story magazine by any means. Every writer and artist in it is there because he is doing something big enough to make him the favorite of Cosmopolitan's millions.

All of these great writers in one single issue!
